AT the Frankfort Penitentiary a da or so since THOMAS CLOYD, a three-year man from Monroe county, became vic lently insane and had to be forced into the Hospital by a heavy detail of guards He imagines that he has been ordered by the Silver National Democratic Com mittee to go on the stump for BRYAN and silver in Mississippi and Louisians and attempted to force his way out of the Pen in order to go on his mission The authorities should let him join the other silver crazy orators on the outside by all means.

THE Editor of The Bulletin is con stantly "prating" about people who for Free-silver years ago, when silver dollars contained 94 cents worth of silver, but who are now opposed to Free-silver because silver dollars contain only 53 cents worth of silver Wonder why Br'er MARSH doesn't print the names of some of those fellows who are now such rampant Free-silverites but who were howling Goldbugs just three months ago? He might head the list with "M. F. MARSH, Editor of The Bulletin," by way of a starter.

THE hard-pan bed-rock facts as asce ned by a canvass of Illinois, in the interest of truth and not merely to inspire political confidence, shows that in the city of Chicago McKinley will re ceive 75 per cent. of the vote east in that city next November. It is nov stimated as reasonably certain that the city of Chicago will give McKinley a majority of from 50,000 to 70,000. He will come to Chicago with a majority of not less than 25,000. So then it is not onable to predict that McKinley's majority in the state may reach 100,000 In commenting on this condition in Illinois, that conservative and careful in-

A gold standard encourages the hoarding of money be-cause money is rising; it also discourages enterprise and paralyzes industry.—Bryan's Madison Square Garden Speech.

The U. S. Census reports show that in 1870, before the passage of the act which Mr. Bryan says established the gold standard, the number of manufacturing establishments in the standard, the number of manulacturing establishments in the United States was 253,148, employing 2,053,996, paying them $775,584,343 annually, and turning out $4,232,225,442 worth of products annually. By 1880 the number of hands employed had increased over 700,000, the wages had increased to nearly a billion dollars, and the value of the product increased over a billion dollars. billion. In 1890 the number of hands employed was 4,712,622, or more than double that reported by the last census under free coinage; the wages $2,283,216,529, three times that in 1870 under free coinage, and the value of the product $9,372,-437,283, or more than double that reported in 1870. Does this look as though the gold standard had "discouraged enterprise and paralyzed industry?" Here are the figures for 1870, 1880, and 1890 in tabular form. Ask Mr. Bryan or any other free silver man how he accounts for them if the gold standard has "discouraged enterprise and paralyzed industry."

[The figures for 1870 are based upon the paper currency basis of that date, and if reduced to the gold basis upon which the latter statements are made, the contrasts would be even more striking.]

The Ledger's Leaflets-No. 29.

If the influences which are at work for the destruction of silver as a standard money succeed in this direction, those same influences will be turned against the weaker nations, and nation after nation will be turned from the use of silver.—Bryan's Toledo Speech.

Is it not rather absurd to assume that any given set of "influences" or organization of men could have secretly and viciously induced the law-making powers of the most intelligent nations of the earth to do an unwise thing in such a short Is it possible that a handful of men could have compelled the intelligent law-makers of such nations as the United States, France, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Nor-way, Spain, Italy, Switzerland, Turkey, Austro-Hungary, Belgium and the English colonies all over the world, to com mit financial harikari, all within a comparatively few years? If a few men had been attempting a plan of this sort which was really bad, would they not have begun on what Mr. Bryan terms the "weaker nations," which would be more easily influenced rather than to have begun with the strongest and most intelligent? How can a syndicate, a few dozen or a few hundred at the most have been able so to deceive 350,000,000 of the most intelligent people of the globe within a few years' time as to lead them to do an unwise thing in regard to the subject uppermost in the minds of all men and all nations, that of business prosperity?

The advocates of the gold standard have never dared to submit that standard to the arbitrament of the ballot.—

Bryan's Columbus Speech.

There have been twelve national elections for members of Congress since the act which dropped the silver coin of the United States was offered in Congress. In every one of these the people have had opportunity to exercise the "arbitrament of the ballot" upon this question; and they have never elected a majority of a Congress in favor of reversing that act.
